JUSTICE HUGHES IS NOMINATED

Is Declared Choice of Convention on First Ballot Today

IS MADE UNANIMOUS

Great Jubilation by Members of Grand Old Party in Finishing Chief Work of Convention

Coliseum, Chicago, June 10— Justice Charles Evans Hughes was nominated today for President by the G. O. P. on the third ballot.

When the tellers had tolled off the votes of the 494 delegates necessary to elect a nomination the cheers of the thousands pasked in the hall were deafening.

A conference of the "olive branch" committee of Republicans and Progressives at 9 o'clock this morning was the last effort to defeat Hughes In the view of leaders it was foredoomed to failure, just as the prolonged discussion of last night had developed a deadlock—the Progressives standing pat on Roosevelt as the Bull Moose price of amalgamation, and the Republicans proffering in his stead any one of a dozen favorite sons, dark horses and possibilities. Last night's conference adjourned at 2:30 a. m., both sides amiable but adamant.

Chicago, June 10—Nomination of Charles Evans Hughes on one or at the most two more ballots, was practically conceded by the allies before the G. O. P. bosts reasembled today.

Chicago, June 10—For the first time since 1888, a Republican National Convention has been required to take more than one ballot to make a presidential nomination.

After a day devoted to oratory in which 13 candidates were put in nomination, a first ballot was taken yesterday evening without a result, and then a second was taken, also without result.

Interest, of course, was in the showing made by the most conspicuous candidates—Hughes and Roosevelt.

On the first ballot Hughes received 252 1-2 votes and Roosevelt 65 1-2. On the second the Supreme Court Justice gained heavily, his tally being 328 1-2, an increase of 76 votes, while the Colonel's vote was 81, a gain of 15 1-2. Senator Lodge turned from Weeks to Roosevelt on the second ballot, Governor Braumbaugh, of Pennsylvania, withdrew his name and threw his strength to Roosevelt.

Last night the peace committee met again and triel to bring the two conventions together.

Meanwhile Perkins and Bonaparte the lieutenants of Colonel Roosevelt, succeeded in holding in check the radicals who would otherwise have nominated Roosevelt tonight.

The result of the first vote showed that the allied Favorite Sons were better informed of the situation than was Mr. Hitchcock. At a conference of the allies, it was agreed, as the result of a canvas of every delegation that Mr. Hughes would poll 249 votes. Mr. Hitchcock believed he had 273 certain votes, with a probability of 28 more, making 301 votes in all. The Hughes vote was 253 1-2, only 4 12 more than the allied Favorite Sons had conceded, but nearly 50 less than Mr. Hitchcock claimed.

The second ballot showed the same accuracy by the Allies and the same miscalculation by Mr. Hitchcock. The Allies conceded Mr. Hughes a net gain of 70 votes. His gain was 75. Mr. Hitchcock had believed that Mr. Hughfhes would gain so many votes on the second ballot that before the result could be announced enough delegates would change over to the Hughes column to nominate him.

On the contrary the gain, while impressive and indicating Mr. Hughes rapidly growing strength and probable eventual victory, did not cause a single delegate to change his vote. Moreover, the allies were easily able to force an adjournment to prevent a third vote. The organization was in control of the parliamentary situation completely.

DEATH OF JOHN R. McLEAN

Publisher and Financier Passes Away at Suburban Home

Washington, June 10—John R. McLean, publisher and financier, died yesterday at Friendship, his beautiful suburban home.

Mr. McLean, owner of the Washington Post and Cincinnati Enquirer, was attacked with a jaundice the latter part of March and his condition fluctuated for weeks. He was born 68 years ago in Cincinnati, the son of Dr. Washington and Mary L. McLean. His father, who left considerable fortune, owned a half interest in the Cincinnati Enquirer, where the secured his training.

Mr. McLean was president of the Washington Gas Light Company for many years, part owner of the Old Dominion Railway and a director in the Riggs National Bank and American Security and Trust Company.

Mr. McLean was among the "inner circle" chieftains of the Democratic party. He had been delegate-at-large from Ohio to numerous national party conventions, in 1885 was a candidate for Senator and in 1889 for Democratic governor of Ohio.

While Mr. McLean was left several million dollars in property by his father, he made a fortune by his own efforts. He was reputed to be worth between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000. One of his sisters is the wife of Ambassador Bakhmeteff, from Russia to the United States.

ILL-FATED HAMPSHIRE

British Cruiser Seen To Be Afire Before She Sank

Aberdeen, Scotland, June 10—The British cruiser Hampshire was seen to be afire beforé she sank off the Orkney Islands, while carrying Earl Kitchener, the British war minister, to Russia, according to statements of men on trawlers and steamers arriving here from the Orkneys.

The disaster occurred last Monday night, only an hour after Earl Kitchener and members of his staff had embarked on the cruiser at the extreme north of Scotland.

One trawler reported that the warship appeared to have blown up—although no sound of an explosion was heard, probably on account of the terrific storm that was raging. Twenty minutes after she was seen in distress and on fire, the Hampshire sank between Harwick Head and Brought of Birsay, off the western coast of the mainland of the Orkneys

The raft from the cruiser, which was flung ashore with twelve men from the Hampshire clinging to it, was discovered by a policeman, who was searching along the rocky and desolate coast. The men were battered and exhausted. A few of them murmured, "Kitchener was on board," and then fell asleep. About 80 bodies were found along the cliffs, many of them still warm.

In their terrific battle with the sea the clothing of some of the men had been torn from their bodies. Their hands and feet had been mutilated in desperate efforts to climb the cliffs.

According to the reports, Earl Kitchener and the members of his staff were placed in one of the ship's boats which got clear of the wreck, but was swamped in the terrific sea that was running.

WARNS ANOTHER, THEN DIES.

Electrician Killed by Current He had Called Deadly.

Red Bang, N. J. June 10.—Less than five minutes after warning Charles A. Fluri, superintendent of the mansion of the late Andrew Freedman, on Tower Hill, against touching two wires in the transformer vault, Leonard J. Waite, an inspector from the Newark office of the Public Service Eelectric Company, was electrocuted yesterday, afternoon, 2200 volts being sent through his body.

His groans were heard by Ray Moore, a plumber's helper, who found Waite lying face downward near the door of the vault. A pulmotor was used, but it was too late. Waite was 28 years old.

THIRD TICKET IS INEVITABLE

Bull Moosers Said to be Determined to Name it Today

ROOSEVELT THE MAN

Attempt to Amend Party's Platform to Favor Prohibition Fails By Vote of 523 to 82

Chicago, June 10.—Convinced that all conferences, proposals, and counter proposals are now unavailing, Progressive radicals entered the Bull Moose convention today determined to nominate a candidate for President. A third ticket in the field is considered an absolute certainty.

George W. Pekins met the chairman of various State delegations in his room at the Blackstone at 8 o'clock.

Perkins called the conference for the single purpose of learning just what the various delegations would accept in the way of proposals looking toward the retirement of the Progressives from the field.

He planned to suggest that word might be received from T. R. and to inquire what the delegations might be expected to do if the Colonel should declare he did not want to make another race as a third party candidate.

There was a feeling that the local element in the convention might force the nomination of Roosevelt, with or without his consent.

Chester Rowell, of Fresno, Cal., who has been one of the Perkins lieutenants, declared early today that the nomination of Roosevelt is certain.

As a matter of courtesy, the convention will await the final report of the 'peace committee' but after that the fireworks will be in the field, the radicals declare.

An attempt to amend the Progressive part 's platform, as submitted by the resolutions committee, so as to include a declaration in favor of prohibition caused a spirited debate in the convention at the afternoon session. On a roll call the amendment was defeated by a vote of 523 to 82.

Oyster Bay, June 10.—Immediately after the adjournment of the Republican convention last night, Colnel Roosevelt assumed personal direction of the Progressive convention through his lieutenants over the long-distance telephone. He was up most of the night making plans for today.

PROPHECIES OF DANIEL

Evangelist Gibson Will Speak on the World's Great Crisis Tomorrow Night

Evangelist F. E. Gibson will deliver a lecture tomorrow night at 7:45 o'clock in a large gospel tent which has been erected on the lot where the school conducted by the late John S. Blackburn stood on Washington street between Cameron and Queen. This lecture will be the first of a series which will be delivered nightly. They will deal especially with the prophecies of Daniel and those of the Book of the Revelation, in which the evangelist will endeavor to show that these forecasts apply to the happenings of the present day as well as to scenes which are to follow in their wake. Mr. Gibson will be assisted in these meetings by Bible students from Washington and elsewhere. Electric lights will be used in the tent and comfortable seats have been provided for all who desire to attend. The evangelist extends a cordial invitation to all. There will be special music every night.

The present disturbed condition of the world has turned the attention of many persons to the seers' descriptions of happenings which are to precede the close of the present age and Mr. Gibson will attempt to interest his hearers in these matters.

MAY BE FOURTH TICKET

New York, June 10—A Washington dispatch to the Herald says:

Now that the platform of the Republican and Progressive parties both declare for a strong foreign policy and a fair standard of preparedness, and it seems to be certain that the Democratic platform will follow them closely, the talk in Washington is that William J. Bryan, in the event that there are three major tickets in the field—Democratic, Republican and Progressive— will head a fourth, the prohibition ticket. Leading prohibitionists here are already discussing this proposal. Of course, if Mr. Bryan runs as the Prohibition candidate he will stand for peace in a measure that will brush all other parties to one side. He would advocate the application of the Bryan peace treaty principles to all the foreign relations of the United States.

WEDGE DRIVEN IN TEUTON LINE

REGAIN TERRITORY

Austria Said to Have Lost 150,000 Men—Czar Has Taken 79,866 Prisoners in Drive

Petrograd, June 10.—With each day's official reports the magnitude of the Russian successes over the Austrians in Volhynia and Galicia continues to grow.

In five days' fighting, it is declared, the Russians have regained nearly 3,000 square miles of territory which it cost the Germans and Austrians weeks to conquer.

Petrograd today places the Austrian casualties in the drive conservatively at 150,000, and by actual count 78,548 men and 1,328 officers have been made prisoners. Many of these were taken when the Russians exploded shrapnel in such density behind the Austrian lines that the men could not retreat through it.

The Russian bear is now a tiger.

Petrograd, June 10—Five days of furious offensive by the forces of General Brussiloff has crumpled their opponents' lines from the Kovel Sarny railway line to Bukowina, driving them back an average of 15 miles.

In the Lutsk sector the Russians appear to have completely broken through, turning the left flank of the Austrian armies and the right flank of the German forces and capturing Lutsk, the centre of a number of radiating roads and railways. At several points the attacking Russians have crossed the Ikwa and Styr rivers and farther south they are approaching the Stripa river.

The victories are attributable largely to the avalanche of gunfire, which swept away dozens of lines of entanglements and opened the way for the troops, who swept through in irresistable numbers. In some places the Russians barrier fire cut off large Austrian units which surrendered. This accounts for the large number of prisoners officially reported captured.

The operation began in the vicinity of Olyka, where skirmishing has been frequently lately. Both sides appeared to have been feeling for a weak spot in their opponent's line. The Russian advance from this point, which is 25 miles from Lutsk, was accomplished in 2 1-2 days. During the long period of inactivity the Austrians constructed strong fortifications in this section. The topography of the country also formed strong natural defenses.

Military observers regard the operation as an extraordinarily brilliant achievement and emphasize the able leadership of General Brussiloff, who conducted the Carpathian campaign and made a record for prisoners, guns and munitions captured. Lutsk is an important link strengthening the connection between the southwestern region and the northern section, and the possession of it by the Russians is regarded as a valuable step toward the recapturing of lost territory. The possession of Lutsk is a direct menace to Lemberg, upon which place the Austrians now are massing their forces.

The prisoners captured are said to be chiefly Hungarians and Austrians. They include a very small proportion of Slavs, who are chiefly employed on the Italian front.

Should the supreme court of appeals refuse the mandamus asked by Major James B. Wood, and others to compel the auditor of public accounts to pay them the salary increase voted to them by the last legislature, Attorney General Pollard may find himself nonplussed. Refusal to grant the mandamus sought would, in the view of some compel Major Wood, Labor Commissioner Doherty and Public Printer Bottom to make restitution to the amounts which have been paid them over and above the sum named in the legislative acts when their pay was fixed Mr. Pollard is understood to hold that special acts must be passed when the salary of any officer is increased. That has not been done for sometime, and it might follow, if the point were pressed, that all increases that have been paid in the excess of the amount named in special statutes should be returned to the State.

"On the west bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) good results were noticeable against French batteries, their infantry and columns of heavy motor wagons.

"On the right bank of the Meuse the fighting is continuing in our favor. Enemy counter-attacks made with strong forces at Thiaumont wood and between Chapitre wood and Fort Vaux all broke down with severe enemy losses.

"In the Vosges, east of St. Die, we succeeded in destroying extensive portions of enemy trenches by mine explosions.

MEETING OF TRUSTEES

Health Committee and School Board Arrange For Re-opening Public Schools Monday

A called meeting of the City School Board was held last night at the request of the Health Committee of the City Council for the purpose of arranging for a resumption of the studies in the public schools which had been interrupted during the present week by the existence of a number of cases of scarlet fever in this city. Eight members of the board and the City Superintendent of Schools were present. Messrs. Wilkins, Brockett and Ballenger of the Health Committee were also present.

Mr. Brockett gave a succinct account of recent happenings incident to the number of cases of scarlet fever which had appeared in the city and told why the Health Committee had deemed it advisable to take early measures to stamp out this dread disease. He told the trustees that he and his associates had calmly weighed conditions and concluded that, in the interests of public safety, they were inclined to act at once in order to stay the progress of this malady. He stated that a meeting of the committee was held Thursday night which was attended by city physicians, and as no new cases had developed and the sufferers from the fever were convalescing satisfactorily, the committee had concluded to grant the request of the City School Board made last Monday night and allow the schools to be reopened Monday. He said, however, that the committee would suggest that the younger students be not compelled to attend during the few days remaining of the present term, but that arrangements whereby they can be advanced without undergoing the usual examinations be adopted. Mr. Brockett stated that this was merely a suggestion, however, as the committee did not desire to interfere in any manner with the plans of the board. It had been noticed in Washington, he said, during the prevalence of epidemics that there was generally a rapid diminution of cases after the closing of the schools.

Messrs. Wilkins and Ballenger followed Mr. Brockett. They spoke upon similar lines.

Superintendent Sweeney stated that there were about eight hundred scholars in the lower grades, and that the suggestion of the committee could be carried out without any confusion or inconvenience.

The schools will, therefore, be reopened Monday, at which time all scholars are expected to report, after which arrangements will be made to advance such pupils as have made the required percentages without requiring their attendance during the last few days of the present session.

ARGUMENTS CONCLUDED

May be Further Hearing of Case of Water Consumers Against Co

Arguments were completed yesterday before Charles M. Broun, special agent of the State Corporation Commission, on the petition of the water consumers against the Alexandria Water Company. There were three principal points involved in the discussion: the right of the State Corporation Commission to regulate the rates and service in view of the charter held by the water company; the sufficiency of the pressure for fire protection and the fairness of the rates.

In case Mr. Broun reports to the Commission that they have a right to regulate the company and the rates need revision there will be a further hearing for the fixing of the rates.

NOMINATION OF JUSTICE HUGHES

Justice Charles Hughes, who has been as the Sphinx of Egypt both before and since the Republican National Convention met in Chicago, was today declared the nominee of that party for the Presidency. His supporters, are not sure that he will accept the gift which has come to him on a silver waiter. It is, however, believed by most people that he will not decline the honor, and but will be as has other candidates—silent during the campaign—that is he will not mount the stump but let his friends manage the campaign. This was a good old custom of bygone years, and when James G. Blaine took the stump in his own behalf in 1884 it was regarded as a new departure. Bryan and Roosevelt were quick to follow the example of the knight from Vermont. All three have been defeated.

It is generally believed that Theodore Roosevelt will not down, and that the country will be confronted with three tickets this year. The former President's friends did all they could to prevent the nomination of Justice Hughes, and force Roosevelt upon the party, but, as has been predicted, a landslide carried them off their feet and wafted Hughes to the front.

The announcement of the nomination of Justice Hughes will be read with exclamations of relief by many who had earnestly hoped the convention would not go on record as favoring violation of the unwritten law and foist a man upon the country who has already filled the Presidential chair twice. George Washington refused a third term. Ulysses S. Grant allowed Senator Conklin to press him for a third term before a republican convention. He obtained a corporal's guard of votes on the first ballot, which were never increased or decreased.

PRODUCING CONTRARIES.

One of our esteemed Virginia exchanges which is not printed on Sundays, contains every Saturday what it calls a "Sunday Sermon." It appears among other editorials, and generally takes up about a column of space. Don't wince, as we have no intention of springing such a feature upon readers of the Gazette, but suggestions come to our ears sometimes which cause us to go out of the beaten track of politics and comment upon daily happenings.

Balaam, it will be remembered, started out to curse Israel, but, to the chagrin of Balak, pronounced a blessing upon that ancient people, and some persons who have read certain 'atheistical or agnosic books, realize that such are more apt to make the convictions of believers in holy writ firmer than ever. People of this class will recall to mind a book which appeared nearly half a century ago, entitled "Ecce Homo," intended by the writer, a noted English scholar, to show that the Author of Christianity was simply a man and in no wise a celestial messenger to this sin-tossed earth. Many after reading the book, were more firmly convinced than ever that the Man of Galilee was all He claimed to be.

We have recently read another book under a less classical heading, also written by an English scholar, in which the author attempts to make sport of things held sacred by others. Among his observations are the some which paint pictures of Christianity in its primary state, and before it walked in its silver slippers. They carry us back to ancient Rome when it cost something to be a Christian. A glimpse of those days will be food in due season to many today who often struggle against great odds in attempting to follow in the strait and narrow path, although it is presented by a man who had no part or lot in the heavenly calling.

In the wee sma' hours of the night when the streets of ancient Rome were deserted save by young gallants reeling home from a debauch, breaking the noses of the street statues, men and women stole forth from their various houses and with mantles covering their faces, hastened to a lonely spot in the suburbs and entered the mouth of a dark cave. They passed through long galleries, moist with damp and odorous of death, for coffins were ranged on either side in tiers one above the other. But soon sweet music sounded from the depths of the abyss; and an open chamber came to view, and a tomb covered with flowers, laid out with a repast encircled by men and women, who were appareled in white robes, and who sang a psalm of joy. It was in the catacombs of Rome where the dead had been buried in the ancient times that the Christians met to discourse on the progress of the faith; to recount the trials which they suffered in their homes; to confess to one another their sins and doubts, or their lack of faith; and also to relate their sweet visions of the night, the answers to their earnest prayers. They listened to the exhortations of their elders, and perhaps to a letter from one of the apostles, and kissed one another when the love feast was concluded. At these meetings there were no distinctions of rank; the high-born lady placed herself upon the level with the slave whom she had once scarcely regarded as a man. Humility and submission were the cardinal virtues of the early Christians. These disciples saw their fathers and mothers, their sisters and their dearest friends hurrying on to destruction unconscious of danger, laughing and singing, lured on by the plantoms they called the gods. They felt as we would feel were we to see a blind man walking towards a river bank. Who would have the heart to turn aside and say it was the business of the police to interfere? But what was death, a mere momentary pain compared with tortures that would have no end? Who that could hope to save a soul by tears and supplications would remain quiescent as men do now, shrugging their shoulders and saying that it is not good taste to argue on religion, and that conversion is the office of the clergy? The Christians of that period felt more and did more than those of the present day, not because they were better men, but because they believed more.

At that age every Christian was a missionary. The soldier sought to win recruits for the heavenly host; the prisoner of war discoursed to his Persian jailer; the slave girl whispered the gospel in the ears of her mistress as she built up the mass of towered hair; there stood men in cloak and beard at street corners, who, when the people, according to the manners of the day, invited them to preach, preached not the doctrines of the Painted Porch, but the words of a new and strange philosophy; the young wife threw her arms around her husband's neck and made him agree to be baptized, that their souls might not be parted in death. How sweet were the promises of a life beyond the grave! The man who strove to obey the law which was written on his heart, yet often fell for want of support, was now promised a rich reward if he would persevere. The disconsolate woman, whose age of beauty and triumph had passed away, was taught that if she became a Christian her body in all the splendor of its youth would rise again. The poor slave, who sickened from weariness of a life in which there was for him no hope, received the assurance of another life in which he would find luxury and pleasure when death released him his woe. Persecutions only served to fan the flame. For to those who believed in heaven—not as men now believe, with a slight tincture of, perhaps, unconscious doubt, but as men believe in things they see, and hear and feel and know—death was merely a surgical operation, with the absolute certainty of consequent release from pain, and of entrance into unuttered bliss. The Christians, therefore, encountered death with joy; and the sight of their cheerful countenances as they were being led to execution induced many to inquire what this belief might be which could thus rob the grave of its dreadfulness and despair.

THE RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE.

According to the London Times, the losses of the Teutons thus far, in killed, wounded and captured, because of the great Russian offensive are not less than two hundred thousand—all within about a week.

The Russians, employing the German tactics at Verdun, it is being pointed out, blasted their way through the Austrian lines and are moving forward with Lemberg already strategically threatened. The success of the Russians is a high tribute to the work of the Japanese in supplying the Russian forces with the needed ammunition. The Galician reverses, that made practically inoperative the Russian army for more than six months, were due to lack of munitions. If they have now the supplies to support the enormous use of ammunition they are making there may be no limit to the smashing drive they are now conducting.

This feat of the Russians would imply that the Germans had taken too much for granted upon the east side and had removed very many of their heavy caliber guns to the Verdun front, in an effort to give success to the arms and glory to the leadership of the Crown Prince. Had their armament been equal to that of the Russians it is not to be supposed that the immense gains of the latter could have been secured.

Austria cannot successfully carry on a mighty offensive against Italy—it has, in fact, already dwindled—and meet the mightly offensive of Russia at one and the same time. Germany cannot carry on its superhuman blasting operations about Verdun and check the Slavs upon the east side at the one and the same time. Now, if England were likewise in position to begin action along the entire front, and if the allies were likewise to enter into an offensive at Saloniki, there would be a good prospect for an early close of the war through the inability of the Central Powers to sustain the hammering. Nor are there lacking evidence of preparation for a vigorous offensive at Saloniki.

Even though the mission of Lord Kitchener to Russia was cut off by his death, there is doubtless already good understanding between the Allies as to the part that Russia is now playing in the general action. Let England now wake up and the Germans will have a hard time resisting the tide of battle against them. Such is the view of the war situation at the present moment from impartial observation.

MEMORIES OF THE CONFEDERACY

The embargo of the allies against Germany and the consequent inconvenience and suffering caused in the Fatherland by the scarcity of food is more exasperating to the proud Teutons than their ineffectual attempt to capture Verdun. Their chagrin is often manifested, and as the war goes on and conditions grow worse instead of better the desperation of the victims of short rations attains fever heat.

But conditions were worse in Paris in 1871, and for a time during the civil war in United States the wolf sniffed around homes formerly blessed with full and plenty.

Charles E. Chidsey, of Pascagoula Miss., in the Manufacturers' Record says:

Grant starved Vicksburg into surrendering. I some years ago saw a bill of fare of the banquet given by the officers of the Confederate Army a few days before the surrender. There was mule tail soup a la mode, sirloin of mule a la roast beef, mule tongue, and the dessert was mule-head jelly served up in some fantastic style. There was not a piece of bread or a vegetable of any kind on the menu. Several choice wines, gathered from the cisterns, wells and ditches of the city and intrenchments, graced the banquet board. The "Reb" that showed me the menu thought it was a huge joke and had no harsh criticism to make of Grant for starving them. And he used to tell how, during that siege the "Rebs" would swap "bacca" with the "Yanks" for coffee.

General Porter, in his book "Campaigning with Grant," tells us how at Appomattox General Grant wrote out the terms of surrender, and then, noticing that General Lee had a new uniform and a new sword, interlined the terms by adding the words "all officers shall be allowed to retain their side arms," and when General Lee read the terms of surrender and come to that passage he looked toward General Grant and bowed his acknowledgement of the victor's courtesy. The document was then signed, and when this had been done General Lee said: "General Grant, my men have not had anything to eat for three days." General Grant turned to his aid-de-camp and said: "Let 30,000 rations be issued immediately for General Lee's army."

This closed the historic scene. The words of Lee and Grant's order now show that the Confederacy had been starved into submission, and you will not hear a "Reb", it matters not how hot-headed a "Reb" he may be, that will criticize General Grant's campaign of starvation. They consider it one of the legitimate means of subduing your foe, and that is all there is to it.

BRYAN AND GREELEY.

Horace Greeley, the editor of bygone years, one of the most prominent and hard-working men of his day, published "Recollections of a Busy Life," after he had passed his zenith. Among other things he said:

"Fame is a vapor; popularity an accident; riches take wings; the only earthly certainty is oblivion; no man can foresee what a day will bring forth, while those who cheer today often curse tomorrow."

William Jennings Bryan three times Democratic candidate for president of the United States, former secretary of state, foremost peace advocate and star chautauqua lecturer, unheralded, unobserved and unapplauded, entered the Progressive convention in Chicago yesterday morning, accompanied by Mrs. Bryan. An usher conducted them to seats in the press section, There was no applause. Mr. and Mrs. Bryan sat throughout the morning session watching the proceedings.

Mr. Bryan has aged since he quit President Wilson's Cabinet a year ago. A stern set expression dominates his face, the lines from his mouth were deep furrows as he gazed over that howling crowd, composed largely of the same class of men and women who worshipped him a few years ago.

CHURCH IS SHOCKED

Anderson, Ind., June 10—When the annual General Assembly of the Church of God, commonly known as the "Winebrennerians," gathered here it was noticeable, although a painful shock to the old members, that another ancient custom is succumbing to the iconoclastic influences of the times.

Among the 2,000 mem in the assembly many were actually wearing neckties And among the sisters, instead of the sober black or gray gowns of simple cut, prescribed by rule, there were to be seen not a few costumes, in pink and blue and other colors.

ASK AID FOR HATTERS.

Because only $132,138.55 of the needed $250,000 was subscribed by American laboring men to pay the judgment against the homes of the aged Danbury hatters in the famous Danbury boycott case, the American Federation has named June 15 as the day upon which labor should contribute the needed $17,000 additional.

The federation's request says that "all workers who did not contribute on January 27 are earnestly requested to contribute the waes of an hour's labor Thursday, June 15."

Special Policeman Samuel Grimes, of Leesburg, was shot Thursday while arresting two negroes who, it is claimed, stole money from several persons on the horse show grounds. at Purcellville, It is alleged that George Lee, colored entered the stable where they were and was robbed of 375. He reported the robbery to Grimes and the men were caught at the station. As the policeman and Lee were taking them to jail one of the negroes attacked Grimes and in the scuffle shot him, the bullet grazing his side. The negroes were lodged in jail.

Attempt was made Thursday night by unknown persons to burn the roller mill of Roudabush and Thompson at Cambria. A pile of sacks was placed at the bottom of the grain elevator, and saturated with oil, from which led a rope of saturated yarn. Entrance was had through a basement window, which afterwards was closed by the fire-bugs by piling sacks of feed over it. They made their escape after lighting the rope, and, this for some reason, probably dampness failed to burn more than a few inches. Had the effort been successful the entire business portion of Cambria would have been destroyed.

R. S. Wood, 42, years of Boyce, Va., was injured, probably fatally, at Hagerstown, Md., last night in an automobile accident. He was riding with Dr. W. B. Stewart, who was driving the car, and Dr. Dennis, also of Boyce, when the driver lost control and the machine was shoved out of its course by another automobile and collided with a tree. Wood, who was sitting on the lap of one of the other occupants, was hurled through the windshield into the street on his head and sustained a dislocated hip, fractured collarbone and probably a fractured skull. Dr. Dennis and Dr. Stewart were slightly injured.

The State Corporation Commission yesterday issued a charter to the Alaska Mines Corporation, of Richmond, which will begin its business of mining and manufacturing with a capital stock of $10,000,000. W. H. Strats, and E. S. Bolen, both of Richmond, are named as president and vice-president. The secretary-treasurer, W. B. Hunting, is a resident of Bronxville, N. Y. The corporation will be allowed under its charter to buy, develop, lease and operate mines, to operate reduction plants, to build a railroad, and to manufacture wares and merchandise. One provision allows it to hold 1,000,000 acres of land.

A SYMBOL OF HEALTH

The Pythagorians of Ancient Greece ate simple food, practiced temperance and purity. As a badge they used the five pointed star which they regarded as a symbol of health. A red five pointed star appears on each package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and still fulfils its ancient mission as a symbol of health. If you are troubled with indigestion, biliousness or constipation, get a package of these tablets from your druggist. You will be surprised at the quick relief which they afford.
